

Governor's Message

Lions,

I have written this latest article about redistricting and started over so many times I've lost count. The root of every effort I've made so far has been about finding the logic in the process that brought us to this point, but I just couldn't make it work. I keep weaving back and forth through the events that brought us here. I was there when IPDG Ray created a comprehensive plan to create a more sustainable Multiple District, only to have it rejected. I saw 4 DGs vote against the recommendation of the Redistricting Committee Chair and the will of the Lions they represent for reasons only known to them. I watched nearly speechless as a handful of MD-24 'power players' used every tool at their disposal to silence our protests and deny us our right to choose how to run our own district. And they did it at the cost of the parliamentary procedure put in place for nearly a century to prevent this exact kind of thing from happening ... As I write this I realize that's why all my previous attempts at this article have failed, I couldn't find the logic in this series of events because there is none.

That said we are still protesting the merger. Even now we are putting together one last attempt at making it clear to LCI our district did not endorse this move and it would be bad for us and the people we serve. With any luck, good sense will win, and at the very least it will get a re-vote at the next State Convention.

As we move ahead, there are a few realities we must face. If the merger becomes inevitable we must embrace it, together, in every respect. 1st VDG Beth and I had a long conversation and we are in 100% agreement that once the merger with 24-B is a certainty we have to do everything we can to work with our counterparts to create the best possible version of what will become 24-I in 2018. The 24-D I know is not one to sulk, gather up our marbles and go home... that's another district. I know the frustration many of you feel, I really do, but we have to remember no matter what the cost, too many people depend on our services for us to just quit. They are the reason I've resisted so hard for this long. Every hardship we experience during and after the transition to 24-I isn't just felt by us, it will be felt by the people we are here to serve. That is why we have protested this long. That is why we will have to be strong and make 24-I not just work, but thrive. Lion Beth has my full support and confidence; please do not interpret her efforts of creating a smooth transition as working against us. In fact, that goes for any Lion doing their best to make this thing work.

I'm going to leave you with this; 24-D is the strongest most effective district in the multiple. This change will be hard, and fraught with challenges... some of which we cannot predict. We are strong enough to overcome them and, if it should come to pass, it will become our job to show District 24-I what Lionism is all about.

Thank you for your support and dedication. I'm proud of you all.

Yours in Lionism,
Lion Tucker Casanova

Lions Project for Canine Companions for Independence

In late October I had the opportunity to attend a seminar about Lions Project for Canine Companions for Independence (LPCCI) during my visit to the District 24A Fall Conference. The session was both inspiring and informative. I'd like to share with you what I learned about the organization. CCI doesn't compete with Leader Dog; in fact the organization provides service dogs to persons with disabilities other than blindness. There are four types of assistance teams:

- Service Teams – Adults and adolescent's with physical disabilities who work with Canine Companions to extend their abilities and utilize the dog to perform physical tasks such as pulling a wheelchair and retrieving dropped items.
- Skilled Companion Teams – Three part team comprised of child or adult with physical, developmental or emotional disabilities, a primary caretaker, and a Canine Companion who helps with physical tasks and creates a bond of companionship, affection and love.
- Facility Teams – Adults who work as rehabilitation professionals, caregivers or educators and utilize a Canine Companion to improve the mental, physical or emotional health of those in their care.
- Hearing Teams – Adults who are hard of hearing or deaf who use a Canine Companion to alert them to everyday sounds such as doorbells, alarm clocks and smoke alarms.

Presenter Lion Nancy, who has a Canine Companion, really inspired me with her personal story about receiving a dog. Nancy was married, had children, enjoyed an active life and was employed as a nurse when she was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis. Her husband decided to leave rather than help her readjust to a different life. This additional loss, combined with her medical condition, sent her on a downward spiral into the depths of depression. Just as Nancy was at the lowest point, CCI called her to come to training to receive a dog. She credits her first dog with literally saving her life. Her dog now helps her dress, performs daily living skills and even brought her the phone to call for help when she fell. This Service Team exemplifies the CCI motto: Exceptional Dogs for Exceptional People. The Lions Project for Canine Companions for Independence is a 501 (C)(3) non-profit founded in 1983 by two California Lions' Districts as a way for Lions Clubs to support CCI. Today, Lions Clubs in 35 states support LPCCI through financial donations, puppy raisers, breeders – caretakers, chapter group members, volunteers, and goodwill ambassadors spreading the word about CCI programs. As Lions we grow when we take the time to learn about all the wonderful services available in the communities around us. I encourage you to take the time to learn more about Lions Project for Canine Companions for Independence; I'm glad I did.

15 Reasons You Should Enjoy Offering the Lions Experience

Tailored from an article by Dr. John Sullivan February 17, 2014 ERE Media for the Lions Clubs of 24D by Mack Stevens GMT

The reasons are divided in three different categories: the impact factors, the excitement factors, and the leadership factors.

Impact-related reasons

If you're interested in having a big impact, here are five reasons to consider becoming a recruiter.

- 1. You literally change people's lives — By involving someone in fun and meaningful projects you show them how much fun it is to get involved in their community and use their time wisely. Because of that tremendous impact, most recruiters find it easy to maintain a high level of excitement and commitment to excellence. Also, by answering prospective member's questions, and by calming them down through education, prospective new members feel welcome, comfortable and prepared to be a Lion for life.
- 2. Recruiting is No. 1 in Club Involvement — To bring in new members your club will need to run more projects which require more members. It becomes an endless cycle. Research has shown that recruiters have the greatest impact on bringing in talented new members to our clubs. Just like in sports, it is obvious to almost everyone that you are making a difference when you successfully recruit talented members into our organization. In some cases, a single new member that you bring in could create a major innovation or a new project affecting thousands of people. If you have the right skill set, you can tweak your own recruiting process so that it also successfully presents and recruits talented, diverse candidates and innovators.
- 3. You will be the face of your club — you will be the first and in some cases the only contact that potential new member has with your club. As a result, you will have the unique opportunity to represent the organization and reinforce its image by treating new members as if they were the clients we help. As a "brand ambassador," you also have the responsibility for spreading the word in person and on social media and the Internet about the factors that make your club a great place to volunteer.
- 4. Other members will be grateful — as you bring in more help, the number of members who will be grateful to you for helping them replace them in their current position will continue to increase. Board members will also be thankful that you helped to improve their team's performance by finding and landing qualified candidates. As result, most recruiters will have many thankful members and officers who are willing to do them a favor in return or who will gladly offer their assistance in recruiting additional new talent.
- 5. If you have initiative, you can create new ways to recruit members — in some clubs, heavy project loads and a hectic schedule means that most clubs, simply don't take the time out to create new recruiting initiatives. As a result, if you find the time to discover or design new recruiting, technology, or metric approaches, you may be given the opportunity to develop and implement them.

Excitement-related reasons

If you're interested in excitement, here are eight reasons to consider becoming a recruiter.

1. The competition is exciting — if you are competitive, as a recruiter you will realize that bringing in new people is a head-to-head competition that can be energizing. Every day you are competing for people's time, money and sweat. Most recruiters also find that discovering hidden talent is also exhilarating, as is successfully convincing top prospects, who have multiple choices, to pick your club's activities.
2. There is a clear winner — unlike many activities, recruiting for a particular club never has a clear beginning and ending point. As a result, after an exhaustive search you will begin to see your club thrive with new ideas, raising more money and helping more people than it has in past years.
3. An opportunity to meet the best — if you like to meet and interact with exciting people, recruiting allows you to meet and get to know hundreds of outstanding people and some innovators each month. In many cases, you get to know these individuals in some depth because that is necessary if you are to fully understand their needs and to be able to successfully present them to other members of the club.
4. An opportunity to interact with district leadership — recruiters have the opportunity on a weekly basis to interact with our officers at all levels of the organization. As a result, not only will you get to know them personally, but they will see the quality of your work directly.
5. You will make and keep many friendships — because most people look for new activities many times during their lives, almost everyone understands the value of knowing recruiters. So, many of the people who you meet both in your business and private life will want to maintain a relationship with you on the hope that you may someday help them. They will also want a relationship in the hope that you will provide them with periodic help as a reference. And because it's part of your job as a recruiter to be continually scouting for new talent and building your network of influence, the time you spend building these personal and professional relationships really pays off.
6. Continually changing assignments — because most recruiters look for people with a variety of different skills, you'll be acquainted with every aspect of how the club runs. This variety can be challenging but it also keeps the job interesting and continually changing.
7. Freedom and control — because your job is to encourage new people to get involved you usually aren't given the tedious and menial tasks at projects but instead you are needed to meet and greet. It's your job to help fill those meaningful tasks with hard workers which has its own unique challenges. Most recruiters have a great deal of control over their work. This means that most recruiters have a great deal of freedom over the "what and the when" of their work, as long as they produce results.
8. Recruiting tools are continually evolving — if you enjoy continually learning, you will find recruiting to be exciting because it is probably the fastest changing field in talent management. Because of this rapid rate of change, you will be constantly learning how to use new technologies and new communications approaches. This is in part because you simply can't successfully recruit top talent without using the same advanced communications approaches that your top candidates have already embraced. This continuing evolution means that you can't ever stand still in recruiting but you won't want to, because you will find the new recruiting approaches to be so compelling and exciting. And fortunately you won't need to return to school to update your recruiting knowledge, because the best recruiters learn continually and informally on social media and the Internet.

Leadership reasons

If you're interested in pursuing a club office in recruiting, here are couple reasons that contribute toward making it a desirable choice.

1. Moving into higher officer positions is a snap — even though recruiting is exciting, many Lions actually prefer the more predictable fields of training, retention, and leadership. As a result of this yearning, recruiting has a high “pass-through rate.” So if you stick with recruiting, it often takes much less time to reach club President or District officer status.
2. You'll know right away if you are any good — unlike many offices, it doesn't take years of practice to become competent as a recruiter. And in the same light, because success is so obvious, you will know within months whether you have what it takes to become a good recruiter. Like anything else it takes practice and perseverance.

Final Thoughts

Even though this article focused on the many reasons why recruiting is such an exciting and impactful job, there are obviously also some drawbacks. The strongest drawback is that recruiters often take it personally when someone is not interested or doesn't have the resources to be a Lion. However, even during tough times, the very best recruiters are still hopeful and simply offering an opportunity to get involved and help those in need in our community – Where there's a need there's a Lion. With the many needs out there today, we have a great many holes to fill! Please offer the Lions experience to your friends, acquaintances, neighbors, and co-workers today.

Bid 'N Buy 2016

This year's Bid 'N Buy Auction was a smashing success despite the torrential rains caused by Hurricane Matthew. Lion Stan Furman, President of the Lions Charity Foundation of District 24D commented; "The depths of dedication to our Charity Foundation displayed by our Lions never cease to amaze me." Furman continues, "There were 243 guests in attendance at the auction this year. Over $26,500 was raised through the event making this year's auction the most successful to date." Registered bidders purchased over 350 auction items ranging from small gifts to big screen digital televisions. Lions from all over South-eastern Virginia drove to Chesapeake to support us even with the threats of flash flooding. Among the guests were friends, family members and co-workers of Lions and members of the general public. "We're especially grateful to the Suffolk Rods and Muscle Cars Club for their generous $2,000 donation to LCF 24D," said Furman. Members of the car club attended the Bid 'N Buy Auction to present the check. The car club chose our foundation to be the recipient of the proceeds from their most recent car show. We were chosen because our local Lions Clubs provide essential services to people in need throughout our service area. Nearly 40 Lions Clubs supported the event by soliciting auction donations, selling program advertisements, raffle tickets and purchasing auction items during the event. Furman states, "We wouldn't be able to produce such a successful event without the support of our Lions Clubs, Bid 'N Buy committee members' tireless efforts and the help of our Foundation board members. A sincere thank you to everyone involved in supporting us to raise much-needed funds to continue our mission." Year-round the Charity Foundation distributes grants to assist Lions Clubs to provide charitable, scientific, literary, or educational endeavors in Southeastern Virginia communities. Visit our website at www.LCF24D.org to learn more about the Lions Charity Foundation of District 24D.

Aragona-Pembroke Lions Club

On Saturday of October 15th, Lion Tanya Casanova brought her cubs Alex and Taryn to the Aragona-Pembroke White Cane fundraiser at the ABC store in the Haygood Shopping Center. She wanted them to see that there was more to what the Lions do besides going to meetings and helping collect glasses and hearing aids by seeing the members raise money. Soon after arriving and greeting our Lion members: Lion Donnie Johnson, Lion Christine Johnson, Lion Chris Widmer and Lion Kim Widmer, instead of watching they jumped in holding the buckets asking for people to donate to the White Cane fundraiser explaining exactly what the Lions are all about. Instead of staying for just an hour they stayed and did another shift with Lion Keith and his wife. At the end they raised $300+.
